Every man liveth so after his own pleasure, And yet of their life they be nothing sure. I see the more that I them forbear, The worse they be from year to year. All that liveth declineth fast, Therefore I will in all haste Have a reckoning of every man's person; For, if I leave the people thus alone In their life and wicked tempests,

He knows every thought of your mind and intent of your heart. A great curse on humanity is every man's arrogant confidence in his own opinions. Only a few men learn to distrust their own ideas, and they are great and wise men in the earth. It is a horrible handicap for a man to allow his opinions and thoughts to remain unchecked in his mind.
