The Government of God and Entrance into the Kingdom Both of Peter's Epistles are concerned with the government of God, taking the divine economy of God as the focus and central point. The subject of the first Epistle is the Christian life under the government of God, showing

The Government of God and Entrance into the Kingdom

Government was designed by God to be an extension of His rule, but sinful men have often looked to government as a replacement, a substitute for it. Such is the case here. Ninth, this matter of what is due Caesar is not an academic issue to our Lord, for He will render His very life to Caesar, and not just taxes .
